

THE EXPLOSION.

Ninety-seven killed—Over one hundred and fifty wounded.

The coroner's inquest—There will be a thorough investigation of the cause of the explosion by the coroner.

NEW YORK, August 1.—Up to one o'clock this morning the dead numbered seventy-two, and a dozen wounded were not expected to live from one moment to another. All the bodies have been recognized but two. A chubby baby, about nine months old, was claimed. It is not seriously injured. Over eighty wounded remain at Bellevue, and probably fifty more are scattered about in private houses in this city and Brooklyn. Up to a late hour last evening the battery groaned and all the neighboring streets were thronged with men, women and children. The arrival of the bodies was watched with much interest. She was loaded with passengers who eagerly crowded to the side of the boat to catch a glimpse of the scene of the late catastrophe. Boats crossing to Hamilton ferry were also crowded, and many of the passengers plainly evinced the anxiety of all. Some of the friends of the dead have not yet been recognized, and the search for them is being continued on the wharf anxiously.

WATCHING THE BODIES.—The gun from Beale's land had announced sundown, and the crowd continued congregated around on the end of the pier, and eyes were strained, all anxiously watching men in coats steadily walking to and fro, and after all proved to be caught in a mass of old rope. As darkness set in, the crowd gradually diminished, and the divers ceased to make their journeys, but dredgers worked up to a late hour.

CORONER KENAN will, in performing his duty, adopt the following procedure, in order to save unnecessary trouble and expense: A separate inquest will not be held in each case as bodies are identified. Certificate of identification will be granted to relatives or friends who identify the remains, and then in about a week's time the bodies will be held on all the victims. At this investigation coroner Kenner will make a note.

SEARCHING INQUIRY.—The cause of the explosion. Expert machinists will be examined regarding the condition of the boiler, and the probable cause of the explosion. The engineer of the Westfield will also be examined at length, and no effort will be spared to determine the responsibility of the disaster to where it really belongs.

THE WORLD publishes the names of seventy-one killed by the explosion, and says there are eight bodies unknown. The Herald gives the names of killed as seven. The names of 127 injured are also published. The majority of the killed and wounded are from this city, Brooklyn and Staten Island. It is believed that many more bodies will be taken out of the water in the course of others will never be found. The most painful after-features of the tragedy was the appearance of hundreds of anxious and HALF-BRAIDED PEOPLE at the hospitals and station-houses, inquiring after their friends and relatives. One poor fellow, Michael Finley, who lost his wife and child by the explosion, has gone mad, and yesterday attempted to throw himself into the river.

INSPECTORS Matthews and Boals will commence the examination to-day at the office of the Secretary of the State. Captain Belknap, United States Surveying Inspector-General of Steamboats, has received a telegram from Secretary Boutwell, directing him to make the most searching investigation into the cause of the explosion and to report the result of his investigation to him.

A TERRIBLE CONVICTION is settling upon the populace that the boiler is yet more than suspected. Several bodies have been taken out of the water this morning, making the number of dead seven already recovered. It is now said by those best informed that the number of the injured will exceed two hundred. The Secretary of the State Island Ferryboat Company stated yesterday that it was, as yet, impossible to attach blame to any one. The inspector of the company has rigidly examined the engineer, stevedore, captain and crew, and cannot attach the slightest blame to any of these officers. This statement, however, may be taken as a warning to the public regarding the engineer. The allowance of STEAM PRESURE, according to the government certificate, was twenty-five pounds to the square inch. To prevent accidents, the government certificate of the boiler is issued, which is only acceptable to the Government inspectors at a pressure of twenty-five pounds to the square inch. When danger is supposed to begin, the valve automatically opens. The engineer admitted that steam had just begun to escape through this valve at the time of the explosion, and immediately after the explosion, he did not previously know the amount of pressure of steam, and that he had neglected his engine. Had the boiler been sound, and the pressure had resisted the pressure till the safety-valve relieved it, but the boiler was a patched one, and close to the WEEK REPORT was the manhole, through which the engineer rose into the boiler to clean out the dirt. The boiler was at the break there can be little doubt, for it was on a representation to that effect by several government inspectors, and with reference to a piece that was blown into the dock, that made Inspector Jamison deem the piece and carry it off to police headquarters.

THOMAS P. POWERS, a Brooklyn boiler inspector yesterday examined the boiler of the Westfield, and says: "The explosion, in my opinion, occurred from over-pressure of steam, as there is no appearance of low water, but, on the contrary, there is every evidence that the boiler was full of water in the boiler."

DRAWING FOR BODIES.—At the scene of the explosion, the bodies were resumed at daylight, but up to this time only three additional ones have been recovered. The excitement at the scene of the disaster is intense. The crowd is as great as yesterday. Only two victims of the late boiler explosion remain at the hospital. The bodies of Patrick Buckley and a girl seven years of age. The latter was identified this morning as the daughter of a Jewish family named Lohndorff, No. 101 Thompson street. The parents among the crowd were the father, a man named Lohndorff, and his wife, Anna and Lohndorff were recovered. Only slight hopes for the recovery of Patrick Buckley.

LITTLE ROCK.

A Funny Fiasco—A Radical Political Editor Jeered by a Negro Audience.

A Rich Affair—The Chiot Judicial Inquiry Settled—Mason, Negro, Triumphant.

SPECIAL to the Memphis Appeal.—LITTLE ROCK, August 1.—The most disgraceful fiasco ever enacted in Arkansas was shown to this public on Monday night. The Rev. J. W. Mason, one of the editors of the Memphis Appeal, had it arranged that a negro band should serenade him prior to his departure for the East Tuesday morning. The band was on the ground early, and when it sprang of black and white. After a few blasts from the black Rhododendron Dhus, McConnell appeared on the awning in front of the office, and essayed to make a talk, but fell heavily, and was only prevented from breaking his neck by the good office of the police. The colored audience mocked him to a degree that excited his ire, and in the effort to denounce them as blackguards, he came near throwing himself over the railing into the street. He was finally secured and put to bed. He left for Memphis, where he both depart for Long Branch to see Grant.

Hon. J. W. Mason, the soi-disant Probate Judge of Chiot, in company with a number of colored friends, in a steady walking to and fro, and after all proved to be caught in a mass of old rope. As darkness set in, the crowd gradually diminished, and the divers ceased to make their journeys, but dredgers worked up to a late hour.
